Subject: RE: Annexation of proposed fairgrounds site
Importance: High

Think of it this way:

The Fair Board cannot have it both ways.

- 1) If they own the land (we have recorded from a public meeting that they have purchased it), the petition to annex seems like it could not be a valid, legal document. The petition is being filed by the supposed homeowners, none of which appear to say anything concerning The Craighead Co. Fair Association, who is the legal entity running the fair. If CCFA has purchased the land, the petition should be null and void and required to be re-applied. The meeting was recorded to show you all the attitude of the Fair Board just as it was shown back in 1996. It is part of the minutes. It was legally recorded since it was not only a public meeting, but according to all we could find on the laws concerning it was that at least one person participating in the conversation had to be aware of it being recorded. It was not hidden. 4 different people recorded. Most openly had the devices laying in the open.
- 2) If they do not own the land, why would they not own it if they are going to relocate regardless? There has been no purchase recorded anywhere that we can find in legal documents. It has not closed, or if it had.....See Above.
