DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE

Report of Expenditures on Furniture, Accessories, and Fixed Assets

for the Years 2005, 2006, and 2007

This report is produced by the city of Jonesboro Finance Department and presented to the City Council in response to a preliminary draft report entitled, "Procedures Relating to Specific Expenditures in Compliance with the State and Local Laws, dated March 4, 2008, produced by Crowe Chizek and Company LLC. This response concentrates on that part of the Crowe Chizek accounting firm's report which focused on the City's expenditures on furniture, accessories, and fixed assets during the years 2005, 2006, and 2007.

As a preliminary remark, it must be noted that the Crowe Chizek accounting firm's report did not itemize the City's expenditures on furniture and accessories, therefore; their expenditure figures includes monies spent not only on furniture, but also on non-furniture items under the $1,500 capitalization threshold, e.g. computers, printers, cameras, scanners, bulletproof vests, firearms, etc., items not normally considered furniture.

Under the asset record-keeping portion of Governmental Accounting Standards Board (GASB) 34, a guideline for state and local governmental financial reporting, the City's asset capitalization is set at a minimum threshold of $1,500. Therefore, under the City's "chart of accounts list," items purchased as office supplies, supplies inventory, and minor equipment that cost less than the $1,500 threshold are classified as supplies while items costing more than $1,500 and having a useful life of over one year are capitalized as fixed assets, e.g. machinery, heavy equipment, motor vehicles, etc.

Also, to comply with GASB 34, the Finance Department's report must consider that "the cost of a fixed asset includes all ancillary charges necessary to place the asset into its intended location and condition of intended use." Therefore, the cost of a fixed asset to the City includes the purchase price plus taxes paid, plus transportation costs paid by the City to transport the asset to the location for its intended use as well as associated costs for installation. For example, the cost of a police car is capitalized including the addition of new major components and improvements that enhance the operation of the police car and which make it suitable for purpose, e.g. seat partition, emergency light system, roof lights, etc.

However, the cost of all of these additional major components purchased for police vehicles by the Police Department were, in the Crowe Chizek accounting firm's report, classified under "furniture and accessories." Also, expenditures classified under "furniture and accessories" in the Crowe Chizek's report include not just the cost of furniture and accessories, but also includes the cost of equipment used on a daily basis by the Jonesboro Police Department such as bulletproof vests, firearms, radar equipment, flashlights, 12V battery booster packs, etc. In addition, under "furniture and accessories," fire equipment purchased by the Jonesboro Fire Department, plus computer equipment purchased by the Information Systems Department and for the uses of the City as well as recreation equipment for the Department of Parks and Recreation can be found.

Although there is considerable room for professional judgment in the area of asset capitalization classification, it appears that the Crowe Chizek's report chose to lump all expenditure under "furniture and accessories," a judgment which in fact distorts the picture of City expenditures under the heading of Public Safety.

After a careful reading of the Crowe Chizek's report and comparing it with the City's purchase order lists, including the records of expenditure, the City's Finance Department concludes that the city actually spent $129,140 for "furniture and accessories" during the years 2005, 2006, and 2007, not $615,332ⁱⁱ in the three years, as reported. In fact, during the aforementioned three year period, the police department's expenditure on "furniture and accessories" was actually $1,998, not $323,950ⁱⁱⁱ as reported in the Crowe Chizek's report.

Respectively submitted to the City Council and citizens of the city of Jonesboro, April 15, 2008
